To Our Direct Customers:

As you know, Philip Morris U.S.A. has been marketing Marlboro Ultra Lights in select markets. Information gathered through market research and consumer response play a key role in determining when and if a nationwide introduction will take place with this or any other test market product.

In recent months we have been notified of a number of retailers outside the test market area who are stocking Marlboro Ultra Lights. It is the intent of Philip Morris U.S.A. to maintain the integrity of established test markets and to limit distribution of test market brands to these test markets.

Through surveys of the retail community, we have identified and contacted a number of wholesale accounts who have been shipping product outside the designated market area. In most instances, the errant shipments have stopped. As we continue to identify the source of product outside the test market, we will notify wholesale accounts so that they may discontinue those shipments. In the event that a wholesale account continues to abuse market privileges, we may be forced to take further action up to and including the discontinuance of Marlboro Ultra Lights shipments to them altogether.

Should you have any questions concerning Marlboro Ultra Lights or the test market area, please contact your local Philip Morris U.S.A. Sales Office.

Thank you for your support and cooperation in this matter.
